The Allied Line.

Easter Monday was the day fixed by Marshal von Hindenburg for his triumphant entry into Paris. He has failed to fulfil his boast, and we may read this morning's news with good hope that he will never reach Paris, and that he has reached altogether, or very nearly, the limit of his advance to Amiens. All the British and French bulletins of the last two days combine to suggest that the German momentum is failing, that the Allies are getting their "second wind," and that the mighty hammer-thrust which was to have ended the war by crumpling and destroying the British and French Armies is beginning definitely to be held. North of the Somme the enemy has achieved little or nothing since his attempted drive towards Arras. South of that river the story of the last two days is a story of desperate fighting in which the balance of gain seems to be on the Allied side. On Friday the British line was pressed back at Démuin and Mézières, and it appears that the enemy captured the former village after a fierce struggle. Yesterday morning, however, brought the cheering news that Démuin had been re-taken, that our position in the Luce Valley has been restored, and that our line has been carried forward at Serre and other places. Moreuil—the furthest point of the German thrust towards Amiens—having changed hands three times, is now in our possession. A determined effort by the Germans to break through between Moreuil and Montdidier was checked by a Franco-British bayonet charge. The Germans are now held firmly west of Montdidier. During the last forty-eight hours they have flung their masses on the line between that vital point and the small town of Lassigny, but the splendid armies of France have refused to yield.

So far, then—and yesterday was the eleventh day of the great attack—the Germans have gained only barren ground at an enormous cost of men. On this Easter Monday we may face the immediate future with resolute hearts and with a sober confidence in victory. If the danger is greater than in any previous crisis of the war, the purpose of the Allies was never more firmly fixed or their unity more complete and splendid. In England, as in France, all class jealousies have disappeared and the voice of "pacifism" is silent. The threat of labour troubles vanished in Great Britain as soon as the first German foot crossed the Somme. When it was suggested some time ago that the Allied forces in France should come under a single command there were ominous murmurs of dissent in high places, military and political. Now the hour has beckoned to the man, and General Foch assumes the supreme command with the enthusiastic good-will of all the Allied Governments, the Allied Armies, and the Allied peoples. The announcement is made in the Prime Minister's statement which we print to-day. He points out that the struggle is only in its opening stages, that the enemy has enjoyed hitherto "the incalculable advantage of fighting as one army," and that co-ordination of the action of the Allied Armies on the western front has become an indispensable condition of success. General Foch's new authority, which, of course, is only temporary—or, as the politicians would say, ad hoc—is accepted with a noble readiness by the British, French, and American Commanders-in-Chief. There is no more inspiring incident in the war than the whole-hearted loyalty with which General Pershing has just put at the service of the new Generalissimo all his country's resources of men and material—huge to-day and destined to be still more huge in the near future. Morally and politically, as well as in the military sense, the Allied line is one and unbroken. It must be Germany's bitterest thought to-day that she is the chief author of that stupendous unity.

The Prime Minister warns us that salvation may not be won without sacrifice. When Parliament meets the Government will announce "certain measures which have long been in contemplation." These will probably include new taxation to meet the growing cost of the war, and will certainly include far-reaching proposals for the reinforcement of the man-power which is now enduring such terrific strains in France. Fortunately, there is no doubt that the English people and those of the Dominions will accept cheerfully any raising of the age-limit or other plan that the urgent needs of the Army may demand. Will Ireland, in this vital hour, still refuse to do her duty? We are told that the Government is divided concerning the application of the Military Service Acts to this country. The problem has different aspects for the Government and for the Irish people. For the Government it is essentially a military problem, which may be stated in the question: Would the game be worth the candle? If conscription were enforced here to-morrow, would the number of men whom it would get for the Army in France compensate the Government for the trouble and, perhaps, danger of the operation? That is a matter entirely for the Government's military advisers; and we suppose that they will decide it from the strictly military standpoint, without any thought of sentiment or politics. The Irish people, however, cannot, and dare not, take that simple point of view. For it the question is national: it goes to the very root of the nation's honour and interest. Ireland has sent many splendid volunteers to the war, but for three years she has refused her share of the burden of compulsory service. England, France, and the United States accepted it long ago; and now the call comes to Ireland more loudly and imperatively than ever before. At this moment the fate of human freedom, including Ireland's freedom, is being decided in France. Englishmen and Americans in thousands are dying in that cause—and at least 200,000 strong young men in Ireland are watching the mighty spectacle, listless and unashamed. If they reject this, the last, opportunity which is offered to their manhood, they will have doomed their country to dishonour and disgrace. If the war is won without Ireland's help, she will be a spiritual outlaw among the nations who will have redeemed the world. To her sons of the next generation the name of Irishman will be a reproach, and her self-government—if she should achieve it in the teeth of an Empire's scorn and anger—will turn to dust and ashes in her mouth.

Tillage Prospects.

The year is now sufficiently advanced to permit of the formation of a fairly accurate estimate of the tillage prospects for the coming season. It is estimated by the Vice-President of the Department of Agriculture, in an interview which we publish to-day, that there will be an increase of at least one-and-a-half million acres in ploughed lands this year as compared with 1916. The farmers of the northern counties have amply sustained their proud record, and we are told that large numbers of the Ulster landholders have put more than 50 per cent. of their farms under the plough. As to the three principal crops—wheat, oats, and potatoes—the prospects regarding the two former could scarcely be brighter. The past two seasons have shown a big increase in the areas devoted to wheat, oats, and barley, and this year there is every indication of a further large increase. As to potatoes, the outlook is not quite so satisfactory, and this is due in a considerable measure to the manner in which the Irish farmers have been treated in England in connection with the disposal of the crop sown for export in 1917. As a result largely of the action of a committee composed of English potato-dealers exports from Ireland were recently held up, and a feeling of uncertainty was created with regard to prices and the general outlook which has had an effect alike inevitable and undesirable upon the Irish growers. We are assured that every effort is now being made by the Department and the Irish Food Control Committee to restore confidence, which is the only essential to the securing of another bountiful potato crop. At the same time there is no use in blinking the fact that there are indications in two or three districts of a decrease in the area of land set in potatoes. This is all the more regrettable in view of the Government's intimation that the area of land to be devoted to potato-growing in these islands should be increased this year by at least one-third, and it is to be hoped that every effort will be made without delay so to restore the confidence of the growers of this country as to atone for recent English blunders and secure another record yield of Irish potatoes. The other important factors with regard to more extensive tillage are labour and agricultural machinery. There are now more than 400 tractors and tractor ploughs in Ireland as compared with about a dozen three years ago, while there is a plentiful supply of reapers and binders. Sir Thomas Russell seems to indicate the possibility of labour troubles, and points out that the actual wages are not fixed by [illegible] brought has been the large number of allotments for the city and town dwellers. Those have not only made an appreciable addition to the nation's food supply, but have had a beneficial influence on the community. In the present year the industry of the Irish allotment holders bids fair to establish a further record.

The Revenue Returns.

The Revenue returns which were issued last night by the Treasury afford a broad indication of the task which confronts Mr. Bonar Law in framing his Budget. On the whole, the figures are far from unsatisfactory, and seem to imply that fewer new taxes will be imposed than many people feared. For the quarter ended March 31st there were increases in the revenue of all departments with the exception of Customs, Excise, and Estate Duties, while for the whole year the only Department showing a decrease was Excise. The principal increases were—as was naturally anticipated—in excess profit duties (over 80 millions) and property and income tax, including super tax (about 34½ millions). The net increase in revenue for the year was £133,806,983 as compared with last year, and exceeded the estimate by 69 millions. The table of expenditure for the year naturally makes less pleasant reading: the total was 2,696 millions—considerably in excess of the Budget estimate. Some increase in taxation appears to be inevitable, but the burden will not necessarily be a heavy one, and the situation is such that the Chancellor might well devote a little attention to points on which the taxpayer's shoe is pinching him rather tightly. Any little relief that the Chancellor may afford to the man with the small income would be not only welcome to a class which is silently and patiently enduring much, but would be desirable from the point of view of the country as a whole.

EASTER MONDAY.

To-day being a Bank Holiday, the "Evening Irish Times" will not be published.

THE YEAR'S REVENUE.

80 MILLIONS INCREASE IN EXCESS PROFITS DUTIES.

The Treasury last night issued an account of the total revenue of the United Kingdom.

For the quarter January 1st to March 31st, a net increase is shown of £26,297,291, as compared with the corresponding quarter last year. There were increases in all departments, with the exception of Customs, Excise, and Estate Duties.

For the year ended March 31st, 1918, compared with the preceding year, there was a net increase in revenue of £133,806,983. The only department showing a decrease was Excise, the amount being £17,608,000. Among notable increases were the following:—

Excess Profits Duties, etc.	£80,294,000
Property and Income Tax (including Super Tax)	£34,476,000
Postal Service	£850,000
Customs	£710,000
Estates, etc., Duties	£442,000
Stamps	£122,000
Telephone Service	£200,000

In the second table it is stated that the total expenditure chargeable against revenue for the year ending March 31st, 1918, was £2,696,221,405, as compared with £2,198,112,710 in the previous year.

The total revenue for the past year was £707,234,565, as compared with £573,427,582 in the year ended March 31st, 1917.

THE KING'S MESSAGE TO SIR DOUGLAS HAIG.

UNCONQUERABLE SPIRIT OF THE TROOPS.

The following letter has been sent by the King to Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig:—

"MY DEAR FIELD MARSHAL,—

"My short visit to the battle front gave me an exceptional opportunity of seeing you and some of your Generals engaged in the fierce battle still raging, and I thus obtained personal testimony to the indomitable courage and unflinching tenacity with which my splendid troops have withstood the supreme effort of the greater part of the enemy's fighting power. I was also fortunate enough to see some units recently withdrawn from the front line, and listened with wonder as officers and men narrated the thrilling incidents of a week's stubborn fighting. I was present at the entraining of fresh troops, eager to reinforce their comrades. In a large casualty clearing station I realised what can be accomplished by good organisation in promptly dealing with every variety of casualty of greater or less severity, and passing on by trains to the base hospitals those fit to travel. The patient cheerfulness of the wounded was only equalled by the care and gentleness of those ministering to their wants. With these experiences, short but vivid, I feel that the whole Empire will join with me in expressing the gratitude due to you and your Army for the skilful, unswerving manner in which this formidable attack has been, and continues to be, dealt with. Though for the moment our troops have been obliged by sheer weight of numbers to give some ground, the impression left on my mind is that no army could be in better heart, braver or more confident than that which you have the honour to command. Anyone privileged to share these experiences would feel, with me, proud of the British race, and of that unconquerable spirit which will, please God, bring us through our present trials. We at home must ensure that the man-power is adequately maintained, and that our workers—men and women—will continue nobly to meet the demands for all the necessities of war. Thus may you be relieved from any anxiety as to the means by which, with the support of our faithful and brave Allies, your heroic Army shall justify that inspiring determination which I found permeates all ranks.

"Believe me, very sincerely yours,
"GEORGE, R.I."

A BRITISH SEAPLANE'S FIGHT.

Stirring details of an action between one of our seaplanes and five enemy machines in the North Sea have reached the Press Association from a trustworthy source. The seaplane was one of two which had left the East coast base on patrol duty. While the other machine was lying some distance ahead five enemy seaplanes, two of which were twin-seaters and three single-seaters, dived out of the clouds at our rearmost machine. The three single-seaters closed in behind the tail of our seaplane, and opened fire at between 200 and 300 yards, hitting our machine frequently. The British seaplane kept up a running fight, and, by steering a zig-zag course, enabled the engineer and wireless operator to bring the rear guns to bear. The engineer succeeded in hitting one single-seater, causing it to side-slip and crash into the water. The enemy two-seaters circled round the crashed machine, while the remaining two single-seaters kept up the fight for another five minutes, and then turned back. The action of the crew of our seaplane has been brought to the notice of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and the Distinguished Service Medal has been awarded to the gunner, Air Mechanic, 2nd Class, G. H. Robinson, O.N.F. 26789, for the skill and coolness displayed by him on this occasion.

FRENCH HONOUR FOR IRISH OFFICER.

Lieutenant John Beatty Barrington, for whose work with his section of the Ambulance Corps in France the President of the French Republic has conferred on him the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, is well-known in Limerick City and County. He is at present at home, but returns to the front at an early date.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, SUNDAY NIGHT.

Never, perhaps, has a message of Easter Day been more grateful to the world since it was first sent forth than it has been to-day. When so many are mourning dear ones slain on the ensanguined battlefields of Picardy the confident hope of life after death can alone sustain them. Now, too, when it has had time to get over the first stunning shock of the enemy's attack, the whole nation has been braced and reinvigorated by its very violence, and, casting aside the sectional differences which were again beginning to show themselves, is ready to march "breast forward" wherever duty may call it. It would be difficult to find two men better equipped by nature to interpret such a mood as this than the Prime Ministers of France and Britain. They may have serious defects, but lack of courage is not one of them.

At no time during the war, perhaps, has German militarism been more imminent danger of collapse. Impelled by what we know not what internal pressure, it has staked its existence on a single throw. For a day or two the odds seemed to be a possibility that it might succeed, though at tremendous cost in German lives, and that a wedge might be driven in between the British and French Armies which would enable them to be crushed in detail. I doubt if many people, even in Germany, think that probable to-day. The German people have been buoyed up by their rulers with the assurance that, if they would pay the price in blood, they could secure a "German peace." They have paid the price, but the goods have not been delivered. What will they say to those who induced them to enter into the bargain?

The first practical result of the German thrust has been to consolidate still further the unity of the Allies. The strong theoretical objections to placing the forces of our nation under a general belonging to another nation have melted away under the flame of the German attack, and the Kaiser has effected in a week what the Allied statesmen and soldiers have been considering for the best part of a year without reaching a conclusion. There is no question of either Sir Douglas Haig's or General Pétain's being superseded or of their respective commands being amalgamated for all time and in all circumstances under the control of a single Generalissimo. General Foch's appointment, I gather, is simply for the purpose of assuring the utmost rapidity of decision in the present crisis, and, as such, it has been welcomed by the British people, as well as a French paper shrewdly observes, we have shown once again "their realistic sense of war."

Professor Spenser Wilkinson, for whose military judgment I have profound respect, considers General Foch's appointment the best news of the week. The drawback of councils of war, he points out, is that they can seldom be induced to take an initiative which is, of all things, the most needful in war. "When two armies are co-operating as closely as the French and British, when the action of each of them is vital to the other, it is of the utmost importance that a single mind, a single will, should direct them both."

By a fortunate coincidence the first war bulletin published after the announcement of General Foch's appointment are the most encouraging since the German advance began. This morning, almost for the first time, Sir Douglas Haig had no further retirement to mention. On the contrary, he tells us of slight advances in our battle line at several places and of enemy attacks all repulsed with heavy losses.

No less satisfactory is the French report received this afternoon. Moreuil, which is situated just where the German thrust towards Amiens has penetrated furthest, and has changed hands three times within as many days, has been captured at the point of the bayonet by French and British troops marching side by side, and all the way from here to Lassigny, a distance of over twenty miles, the repulse of the enemy is described as complete. Nevertheless, it would be a mistake to assume that the danger is over and that Amiens is now safe. The Germans are too deeply committed to their present enterprise to break off the attack until they are absolutely compelled. For the sake of the dynasty they must go on. It is, perhaps, not curiosity alone which has brought the Kaiser to St. Quentin as a spectator of what he calls "my battle," but also the instinct of self-preservation, for the fate of the Hohenzollerns hangs in the balance. Whatever the issue of this titanic struggle may be, Germany the nation will survive, but it is otherwise with the Prussian military autocracy.

What a contrast in monarchical manners is provided by the stream of declamation that issues from the Kaiser's headquarters and that brief paragraph in last night's Court Circular mentioning the King's visit to the front. The secret of His Majesty's intended journey, though known to a great many people, was very well kept. It was a happy instinct that prompted him to hurry to the scene of action and personally tender the thanks of King and country to the men who have been fighting so gallantly for them during these many strenuous days.

It had been arranged that the King and Queen should leave London for Windsor last Thursday and spend Easter there, but the King, on his own initiative, determined that he must visit his soldiers, and left for the front, spending forty-eight hours in the battle zone. The Queen meanwhile gave a national lead by visiting munition factories where the Easter holidays were being worked, to show that the action of the workers was being appreciated. Queen Alexandra did similarly.

The Prime Minister was able to spend Sunday in his home at Walton, but his secretaries were at 10 Downing street, and he was kept in close touch with them by telephone.

DUBLIN TRAMWAY DISPUTE.

THE MEN CONTINUE AT WORK.

A largely attended meeting of the Dublin Tramwaymen was held on Saturday night in the Trades' Hall, Capel street, to consider the situation brought about by their demand for an increase in wages of 21 per week on pre-war rates. The proceedings, which lasted for upwards of three hours, were conducted in private, but it was subsequently stated that an intimation had been received from Mr. Williams, Secretary of the National Transport Workers' Federation, that he had been officially informed by the Ministry of Labour that the men's application for the extension to them of the award secured by the National Amalgamated Union and the municipal employés, was being referred to the Committee on Production. This intimation was received with satisfaction by the meeting, and it was decided that the men would continue working pending further developments. The notice given by Mr. Williams to the Tramways Company expired on Saturday at midnight, but there was no interruption of the car services in the city yesterday.

It was stated that the house of a member of the Dublin Tramwaymen's Union was searched by the police for arms shortly after midnight on Saturday, but that no weapons of any kind were found, and the men's officials deny that there is any intention on their part to resort to violence in the event of a strike.

Our Belfast Correspondent writes:—The Committee on Production has issued its award upon the claim of the National Amalgamated Union of Labour and the Municipal Employés' Association. The award is that the workmen concerned in the tramways department (with certain exceptions) and 21 years and over who are paid ... time workers, shall receive, as from the beginning of the first full week which followed 7th March, a bonus of 12½ per cent. on earnings, which shall not alter or become part of their time rates. In the case of men who have been receiving certain other bonuses or payments less than that granted by this award, the former shall be merged in the latter. A bonus of 7½ per cent. shall be paid to workers in the tramway department of 21 years and over who are piece-workers, or paid on a premium bonus system or any other system of payment by results, bonuses or war advances previously paid to piece-workers shall merge in the bonus of 7½ per cent. This award does not apply to motormen, conductors, or other employés on the traffic side of the tramways undertaking, whose case is reserved for further consideration. Advances have also been made to boys and youths under 18 years of age.

PICTURES AT THE ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

A new home for the Royal Hibernian Academy by this time next year is something within the bounds of possibility, for the Government have under consideration a scheme which would enable the Academy to work on broader lines than hitherto, particularly in an extension of its art school and providing more facilities and encouragement for promising students. The question of the site is not yet finally settled. On the one hand, the walls of the Academy building are still sound enough to afford a starting point for reconstruction, while, on the other hand, there is a project to remove the Academy to a site nearer the other art institutions of the city and to its fashionable quarters, where more extensive accommodation would be available.

GENERAL FOCH'S POSITION.

Commenting on General Foch's position, The Times says:—In view of bygone discussions of the Generalissimo ideal, the public will be well advised to accept the official statement as meaning precisely what is says. Though nothing is served at this stage by retracing in every detail the long story of the evolution of an Allied strategy, yet this new decision does manifestly complete the process begun at Versailles last December. It is not a reversal of policy, but the climax of many successive stages. General Foch, as we understand the position, neither possesses nor desires the title of Generalissimo. His function is properly described by the Government as that of co-ordinating the action of the Allied Armies. The distinction may seem to be more verbal than real, but it is sufficiently plain to those who have followed the events of the last few months, and the selection of General Foch is, itself, a guarantee that the work of those months, in spite of all its interruptions and slowness, has nevertheless been broadly continuous. The truth is that, under the stress of three years and a-half of war, the Allies on the Western front have gradually come to a form of military union, less perfect in the nature of things than the German, but the best in the circumstances, and finally welded in the fire of a great emergency. We can assure our splendid Allies that no voice of any consequence will protest in this country because the choice for so great a task has fallen on a Frenchman. No one has more to gain than the British Army by any arrangement which will help to make their co-ordination more effective, and we are quite certain that Sir Douglas Haig and Sir Henry Wilson, whose own spheres of action remain unimpaired, are the first to support the wisdom of a decision in which both have had a hand.

THE PRIME MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times writes—The Prime Minister's statement covers the whole situation in general terms. It reflects the Government's sense of the gravity of the crisis, of the unprecedented magnitude of the German attack, and of the indomitable bravery of the British Army. It announces the appointment of General Foch to co-ordinate Allied military action on the Western front. Finally, it foreshadows a large appeal to Parliament for "further sacrifices." The "sacrifices" which Parliament is to be asked to sanction are, of course, involved in a further call for men. It is certain that the new Government measure will raise the age limit for service, and it is understood that Sir Auckland Geddes is at work upon a scheme for grading the new recruits, both by a physical test and by the relative importance of their present occupation. Any raising of the age limit presupposes a drastic "comb out" of younger men, and the case for including Ireland, on which it is doubtful whether the Government have yet reached a decision, is popularly regarded as overwhelming. There is strong pressure for calling Parliament together at the earliest possible moment.

A PROTRACTED BATTLE.

It is clear, says The Times, that the Germans are just now finding our defence north of the Somme too much for them, and they are more and more diverting their strength to the southern sectors. They have apparently massed large forces along that part of their line which is nearest to Amiens, and are exerting all their strength with the object of pushing through to their principal goal. Simultaneously, they are concentrating more divisions around Montdidier, and in the region between that place and Noyon, their purpose being to enlarge their gains in all this area, and to ward off the increasing pressure of the French reinforcements. On the whole, despite the gain of a village here and there, they have made little real progress, but the whole battle in the south has become a short trial of strength in comparatively open country, and its tendencies are still extremely indefinite. The operations show every sign of lasting much longer than was at first anticipated in many quarters, and it may be taken for granted that the enemy did not foresee their protracted duration.

KEPT IN CHECK.

It is a truly dreadful Easter Day telegraphs the Special Correspondent of The Times at Headquarters, but I do not think that anybody, French or British, is other than full of hope. The situation in the last two days has hardly changed. The enemy has made no progress of any importance, but has failed in several minor enterprises, and in one effort, at least, of real importance—namely, the attempt on Arras and the Vimy Ridge, the magnitude of which becomes more evident the more we hear of it, and the more the German prisoners and captured documents are examined. Elsewhere the Germans have made a little advance on the south of the Somme in the occupation of Démuin, a small village on the little River Luce, south of Villers Bretonneux and Marcelcave. The gain has no significance, and, except for that, we have held the enemy everywhere, and have inflicted heavier losses than we have suffered, and have taken more prisoners by far than we have lost. (Sir Douglas Haig reported yesterday that our line in the Luce valley had been restored.) In one minor but gallant enterprise alone in the region about Hebuterne and Auchonvillers, between Arras and Albert, we took 200 prisoners, with forty machine guns and trench mortars.

IRISH CATTLE PRICES.

The Agricultural Correspondent of The Times writes:—The position of the trade in fat cattle between Ireland and Great Britain demands immediate attention. If things are allowed to continue as they are, the inevitable result will be serious for the nation. The general effect of the system now in operation is to transfer the source of the danger from this country to Ireland, where the entire business in cattle is being disorganised and injured to an extent that imperils the meat supplies of the country in the critical months that separate us from normal production. Responsibility for the situation in Ireland, it is only fair to say, does not lie with the Irish stockowners, or, indeed, with the authorities in Dublin. The blame for the inexplicable anomaly that obtains respecting the prices of fat cattle here and in Ireland is understood to belong to the Government or the Ministry of Food. The remedy is in their hands, and it is difficult to appreciate the reason for delay in its application. The trouble and danger arise from the giving to certain sections of the trade permission to buy fat cattle in Ireland at unrestricted prices, and guaranteeing such buyers against loss. The actual cost of this extraordinary proceeding ... British public, who have to make good to the traders the margin between the prices they pay in Ireland and the amount they realise in this country. This indefensible privilege could be stopped without extending the operation of the existing Orders to Ireland, if there were any grounds for not taking the bolder and fairer course. The strict enforcement of the law at Birkenhead and other ports where Irish consignments are landed would end the injustice, for traders would not long continue a practice that involved them in heavy loss. The effects of this traffic are many and far-reaching, but it is enough that the whole organisation of cattle-raising is ...

WAR ITEMS.

A German submarine, O.B. 48, put into Ferrol on March 24, says a Lloyd's telegram. The boat will be interned.

In the successful advance made by our army in Palestine, amongst the prisoners captured in the taking of Shunetrimrin were 35 Germans, apparently sent to assist the Turks in fighting the Arabs.

A Berlin telegram says that at 12.45 p.m. on Thursday enemy airmen attacked the town of Luxemburg. The message adds that, in addition to heavy damage to houses, ten dead have been reported up to the present, including a German soldier.

The Rheinische Westfalische Zeitung publishes an Order of the Day issued by the German Crown Prince to the Fifth Army, in which he says:—"At the command of the Supreme War Lord, the Fifth Army is to be detached from my Army group. I express my thankfulness to the Fifth Army, and my hope that they will not forget me."

The Japanese War Minister telegraphed to Lord Derby:—"I cannot but admire the British and French troops' gallant stand against the reckless enemy's onslaught with superior strength. I rely upon the bravery of the British and French troops, and completely believe in their final victory."

PREMIER AND THE BATTLE.

GENERAL FOCH AS GENERALISSIMO.

NEED FOR MORE MEN.

IMMEDIATE MEASURES TO BE TAKEN.

The Prime Minister made the following statement on Saturday night:—

For the first few days after the German Army had launched upon our lines an attack unparalleled in its concentration of troops and guns the situation was extremely critical. Thanks to the indomitable bravery of our troops, who gradually stemmed the enemy advance until reinforcements could arrive and our faithful Ally could enter into the battle, the situation is now improved. The struggle, however, is still only in its opening stages, and no prediction of its future course can yet be made.

From the first day the War Cabinet has been in constant session and in communication with Headquarters and with the French and American Governments. A number of measures have been taken in concert between the Governments to deal with the emergency. The enemy has had the incalculable advantage of fighting as one Army. To meet this, the Allies have, since the battle began, taken a most important decision. With the cordial co-operation of the British and French Commanders-in-Chief, General Foch has been charged by the British, French, and American Governments to co-ordinate the action of the Allied Armies on the Western Front.

In addition to the action taken to meet immediate needs of the moment, it will be necessary to bring into operation certain measures which have long been in contemplation should a situation such as the present arrive. It is clear that whatever may happen in this battle the country must be prepared for further sacrifices to ensure final victory. I am certain that the nation will shrink from no sacrifice which is required to secure this result, and the necessary plans are being carefully prepared by the Government, and will be announced when Parliament meets.

APPEAL TO THE COLONIES.

The following message has been sent by Mr. Lloyd George to the Prime Ministers of Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, and Newfoundland:—

We have been inspired during the past week with the constant news of the dauntless courage with which Dominion troops have withstood desperate assaults of vastly more numerous German forces. The battle shows that the Empire has good reason to be proud of all its sons. Our Armies cannot have too many of these splendid men.

As already announced, we propose to ask Parliament to authorise immediate measures for the raising of fresh forces here. I would also urge the Dominion Governments to reinforce their heroic troops in the fullest possible manner and with the smallest possible delay.

The struggle is only in its opening stages, and it is our business to see that our Armies get the maximum measure of support that we can give them. Let no one think that whatever the remotest of the Dominions can do now can be too late. Before this campaign is finished the last man may count.

SUPREME COMMAND.

AMERICANS AND GENERAL FOCH.

With reference to the appointment of General Foch as Generalissimo of the Allied forces, it was stated, says the Press Association, in answer to inquiries in official quarters, that a supreme Allied Command was the natural outcome of a recent decision in regard to the co-ordination of the Allied military effort, and since that decision was taken General Foch has been in virtual, if not actual, supreme command.

There is no question of superseding Sir Douglas Haig, but merely an agreed scheme for providing unity of control. As we are fighting on French soil the compliment would almost certainly have been paid to France to give her the nomination of the chief, and since all are agreed that unity of control is highly desirable, it is imperative, there is not much risk of friction over the selection.

FEELING IN WASHINGTON.

The appointment of General Foch to the supreme command of the Allied forces was announced in Washington on Saturday, says a Press Association war telegram.

President Wilson has sent the following message to General Foch:—

"May I not convey to you my congratulation on your new authority? Such unity of command is the most hopeful augury of ultimate success. We are following with profound interest the bold and brilliant action of your forces."

Confirmation of General Foch's appointment as Commander-in-Chief in France came in a message from General Pershing, saying:—"I have made all our resources available, and our divisions will be used if, and when needed. The French are in fine spirits, and both Armies seem confident."

GENERAL PERSHING AND GENERAL FOCH.

A Reuter telegram, dated Paris, Saturday, says:—In the course of a meeting held yesterday at the front, in which General Foch, General Pétain, M. Clemenceau, M. Loucheur, and General Pershing took part, in greeting General Foch, General Pershing said:—"I come to tell you that the American people will consider it a great honour that our troops have taken part in the present battle. I tell you, in my own name and in theirs, that if it is a question of fighting, our infantry, artillery, and aviators, and all that we have, are at your service, to use as you will, and there will come still more as many as may be necessary. I have come expressly to tell you that the American people will be proud to take part in the greatest and grandest battle in history."

General Pershing's spontaneous offer of help, placing all his forces at the disposal of General Foch, has made the best impression in French circles.

AMERICANS ANXIOUS FOR FIGHT.

Mr. Baker, Secretary of War, has communicated the following to the Press Association's Special Correspondent with the American Army in France:—"I am delighted with General Pershing's prompt and effective action in placing all the American troops and facilities at the disposal of the Allies in the present situation. His action will meet with hearty approval in the United States, where the people desire their Expeditionary Forces to be of the utmost service to the common cause. ROYAL HIBERNIAN ACADEMY.

PICTURES AT THE ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

A new home for the Royal Hibernian Academy by this time next year is something within the bounds of possibility, for the government, who under cover of a scheme which would enable the Academy to work on broad lines than hitherto, partly by an extension of its present and partly by more facilities and economic ment for purchasing studies. The question of the site is not yet finally settled. On the one hand, it has been urged that Academy building are still bound up with the stirring point of recent years, and on the other hand, there is a strong feeling in favour of a site nearer the other art institutions of the city and to its fashionable environment. The more central accommodation would be, it is de

The present issue needs no introduction to Dublin, which has long regarded it as a matter of course that the Academy should open its doors in the spring of each year. The exhibition is, as usual, a representative one, and the standard of work by J. Humbert Craig, R.H.A., is quite up to the high standard of the city, which has been his home for many years. Another Academician, Walter Osborne, R.H.A., attracts attention, if not by the quantity, at least by the quality of his contribution, which includes a study of a girl in a white dress, and a landscape in which the colouring is the same delightful mixture of silver and gold. Mr. Lavery's "Going to the Races" (No. 8), painted by the artist's daughter, Miss Kathleen Lavery, R.H.A., is another Lavery picture which will be welcomed by those who have had the opportunity of visiting Clarke Lake, Kew Bridge, and Kilmacurragh. THE KING AT THE FRONT.

he moved softly amid this scene, pausing often to speak to those who smiled recognition or to inquire about those who seemed in sad plight. "This will back the lorry up more than anything I can think of," said an elderly Canadian chaplain to me, with a tremor in his voice. "That poor lad over there has just asked me what is going on, and when I told him the King had come over to visit us he said, 'God bless his old heart.'"

WITH THE FLYING MEN.

From this harbour of misery and mercy, the King motored out to the aerodrome of a squadron which has achieved much fame for low flying feats. A whistle sounded, and all the men dropped their work and doubled up to the parade on the aerodrome. As soon as he was within hearing distance, His Majesty called out for every man to carry on his work as usual. After a round of inspection and chatting with various officers and men, His Majesty walked across to an adjoining aerodrome, where he inspected an American section, whom he congratulated upon their fine and smart appearance, praise which was well justified, for a likelier looking set of lads never yet soare to drive the Huns out of the air. He then announced that he had accepted the Hon. Captain McCudden's kind mouth applause. After taking tea at an Army headquarters, the King returned to the scene of many months' work, and completed his solid hours of unflagging activity.

On Saturday morning the King was in his car by a quarter to seven. After spending about half an hour at an Army headquarters, and hearing all about the fighting, His Majesty proceeded to visit similar centres. To the corporal of the 24 drivers he expressed his great appreciation of the splendid manner in which the drivers of these vehicles have worked throughout the war, and never more so than at the present time. He met men who had been in the trenches of what he now knew from captured orders to have been an attempt to retake Vimy Ridge between Arleux and Monchy, and to free Arras from Germanism. The various battalions of the division in rest he also visited, and heard the story of the attack, how their division had for three hours held up the tremendous German onslaught, so that the German corps commander, seeing that the village would cause him no end of trouble, ordered it to be outflanked on either side, and off went the division to another position. One more the periscope disappeared, but not before three rounds had been fired at the German destroyer, who also dropped a depth charge. The enemy's bow then came up rapidly, and it appeared that he was living up to his 30 odd knots stern down. He managed to right himself, and tried to get away on the surface, but the Americans knew the game well by this time, and opened fire on the Germans then came on deck, held up their hands, and surrendered. The U-boat sank afterwards. The party of survivors being taken on board one of the destroyers.

SUBMARINE v. SUBMARINE.

Sometimes duels are fought between British and German submarines. A British boat ranged to cut the enemy off, and at twenty minutes to twelve a large U-boat was reported about 4,000 yards away. The light was moderately dark, but, unfortunately, there was such a heavy swell running that the gun could not be controlled, and consequently the enemy sighted her turned tail and began to dive. A torpedo was discharged at the German, who disappeared when it was two hundred yards away from him. The torpedo passed immediately over the foaming tower, but the German had had a fine escape. Submarine Better luck attended the efforts of another British submarine, which sighted a U-boat one morning. The British boat dived, and on the course so as to get into a more favourable position, and fifteen minutes later she again picked up the German by means of her periscope. Twenty-two minutes after having first sighted the enemy, the British boat discharged a torpedo, and about sixty seconds later a sharp explosion was heard. The British boat then came up to look for results and sighted a patch of oil right ahead and three men swimming in it. Two of these men were picked up, but the third sank before he could be rescued. It seems that the U-boat had sunk very rapidly after being hit by the torpedo.

After a close lasting nearly two hours one of our submarines succeeded in sinking her quarry, an enemy submarine. The hostile vessel had evidently just come to the surface, as men were noticed on her bridge spreading the bridge screen. While manoeuvring to attack, our submarine had to keep in very shallow water, and as the sea was tough at the time, she frequently bumped the bottom heavily, but fortunately avoided breaking surface. At a range of 550 yards, both bow tubes were fired. On firing, the periscope was dipped in case the boat rose, and the tube was brought to bear so as to be ready in the event of a miss with both tubes. Fifteen seconds after the firing a dull report was heard. On the periscope being raised after a short interval nothing was seen of the enemy submarine, but there was a great disturbance in the water where she had been. On proceeding to the spot where she was last seen it was observed that the water was covered with an oily substance, which stuck to the glass of the periscope, obscuring vision. Although the vessel was not actually seen to sink, there is little doubt that she was torpedoed, as it is improbable that she could have dived while steaming on the surface, in the brief space during which the British submarine's periscope was lowered.

COMPELLED TO SURRENDER.

An interesting and successful engagement was that in which two destroyers, in the Channel, escorting a convoy of merchantmen. A periscope was sighted, and the destroyers altered course. The periscope disappeared, a depth charge was dropped, and the destroyers wheeled back to the spot. The periscope again appeared, as the ship's leading destroyer, and off went the other destroyer at full speed. HUNTING THE U-BOAT.

HOW THE DESTROYERS WORK.

Owing to facilities afforded by the Admiralty, the Press Association is able to give some interesting particulars of what our gallant seamen are doing in the way of hunting the enemy submarines. The hunting of these pirates is conducted along a variety of lines. The difficulty of getting proof of the destruction of the uncertainly as to the damage inflicted upon a submarine wholly disappears after being hit. The British Navy, many of them experts in their character—taken from recent Admiralty reports, and from some of the experiences of individual officers.

Motor launches were out on patrol, when one of these apparently submarine under water. This was confirmed shortly afterwards by the two other boats, and appearances indicated that the submarine was badly damaged. She lobbed took up the chase, and it became obvious that the submarine realised she was being pursued, and was trying to escape. The launches stepped. So the game of blind man's bluff went on until at last the launches had manoeuvred into such a position that they could "box her in" like chickens. There were some under water explosions, a quantity of oil which spread itself over the surface of the sea—and no further sound.

An armed trawler, while on the look out for submarines, sighted a periscope on the starboard quarter, and nearly right ahead. The trawler put on full speed, while the German made equal haste to submerge. The trawler, on reaching and as the trawler passed over the spot a couple of bombs were dropped on the submerging German. There was a large upheaval of water, which covered an area of about 1,000 yards in width upon the surface of the sea. No further trace of the submarine could be detected.

THE KAISER AND THE WAR.

DR. MUHLON'S REVELATION.

The Berliner Tageblatt, says a Reuter Stockholm message, publishes the memorandum written by Dr. Muhlon, who at the outbreak of the war was a director of Krupp's. This memorandum was referred to in the Main Committee of the Reichstag on March 16th by the Vice-Chancellor in the course of a statement regarding the Lichnowsky revelations. The memorandum, which is undated, says:—In the middle of July, 1914, I had a conversation with Dr. Helfferich, then Director of the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, and to-day Vice-Chancellor, respecting an adverse decision in a big transaction regarding Bulgaria and Turkey, in which Krupp's, for business reasons—delivery of war material—had a great interest. Dr. Helfferich remarked: "The Austrians were with the Kaiser to-day. Vienna will, within a week, send a very sharp and quite shortly-worded ultimatum to Serbia, including demands, such as the punishment of a number of officers, the dissolution of the political unions, criminal investigations in Serbia by officials of the Dual Monarchy, and generally a demand for definite and immediate satisfaction, failing which Austria-Hungary would declare war on Serbia."

Dr. Helfferich added that the Kaiser had concurred fully with this procedure by Austria-Hungary, and had said that he considered it conflict with Russia inevitable. Afterwards Dr. Helfferich told me that the Kaiser had been of the opinion that Austria-Hungary would not proceed without mobilising, but his mobilisation meant immediate war. This time there would be no hesitation. Dr. Helfferich said that the Austrians were much pleased at the determined attitude of the Kaiser. When I pointed out to Dr. Helfferich that the ultimation only seemed to make my strong fears of a European war a certainty, he answered that it certainly seemed so, but, perhaps, Russia would recommended consider the matter. The Serbians, however, needed a severe lesson.

THE FIRST INTIMATION.

This was the first intimation I had of a conference between the Kaiser and our allies. I knew of Dr. Helfferich's confidential relations with persons who must be in the know, and the accuracy of his information. I informed Herr Krupp von Bohlen of this conversation with Dr. Helfferich. He appeared astounded that Dr. Helfferich should be in the possession of such information, and remarked conspiringly that people in the Government could never quite hold their tongues. He then told me that he had recently been with the Kaiser. The latter had also spoken to him of the conference with Austria, but he declared that the matter was secret, that he had not even dared to speak with his directors about it. He added that, as I knew it, Dr. Helfferich's remarks were true, although the latter's second sight knew more details. The position was, indeed, serious. The Kaiser explained that he would at once declare war if Russia mobilised, and that this time it would be seen he would not fail. The Kaiser's insistence that this time no one could accuse him of weakness and indecision reminded me of his peaceful politics of this little island. How long? But the echo of the brave voices of Easter Day still lived in our ears, and shone in Christian hearts. Despite those tears, this anguish, we may be more than conquerors in Him who loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

FAITH IN WAR-TIME.

ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN'S SERMON.

Preaching yesterday in Christ Church Cathedral from Rom. viii., 37—"More than conquerors"—the Archbishop of Dublin said that this was one of the triumphant notes of Christian men in the days when the tidings of Christ's Resurrection were still a living memory. His victory was the conquest to attend the hours of strangest conquerors, henceforth. As we look back, we cannot fail to see how wonderful a claim it was, and how little justified in all earthly seeming. For the victory of Easter, as we like to call it, as we ought to call it, was had recognised outside a small company of men and women of little consequence in the world's eyes. The gallant Mission of Jesus had ended on the Cross. Those who sought to destroy Him and His teachings had succeeded, or so they thought. He had called Himself a King, and had persuaded a few simple folk that His claim was true. But there it had been an end of all that. And those who ventured still to call themselves by His Name were despised as crazy fanatics. That was the world's verdict upon the Cross and the Sepulchre. And again, It is surely a wonderful thing that the most exultant rejoicing that has ever been put into words comes from the darkest hour of the Christian Church. The visions of the Revelation are not imaginary. The man who wrote them had seen horrors of famine and battle and death had seen them. All this had come upon the world as he knew it, and yet he hears heavenly voices calling him to "rejoice in the salvation and the power and the kingdom." He was one of those who had looked for an earthly kingdom, and his hopes had been destroyed. "How long, O Lord?" is his cry. But his thought rises above the present agony and disappointment, like St. Paul, he would have counted himself more than conqueror, more than conqueror, although long centuries were to pass before the world would see the triumph of the world. We need to remember all this if our Easter Festival is to be kept to-day in the right spirit. Many, many have died. And it is, hard to be joyful this Easter Day. We had thought of something quite different. Three years ago we had met our Easter, and had looked for swift and decisive victory. And we were right in our deep conviction that victory must come, for we believed in God, who is the God of righteousness and truth, though tongues were not at last in the world that is this. But has come, now, yet. Were we wrong? Nay, indeed. Not wrong in our faith that right would finally triumph. But, perhaps, we had not counted the cost. And in this dark hour, we are pausing through the Passion which must precede the new life, for nations as for men. It is being long drawn out. It is full of torture to aching hearts. "How long, O Lord?" is the natural, instinctive cry of everyone among us whose vision has not been dimmed and distorted by the miserable selfishness and hate which have been the evil powers and parochial politics of this little island. How long? But the echo of the brave voices of Easter Day still lives in our ears, and shone in Christian hearts. Despite those tears, this anguish, we may be more than conquerors in Him who loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

EAST TYRONE ELECTION.

THE NOMINATIONS.

On Saturday the Sub-Sheriff of the County Tyrone, Lieut.-Colonel Henry Irvine, C.B., accompanied by his assistant, Mr. R. H. Carson, B.C.S., Omagh, sat in Dungannon Courthouse to receive the nominations of candidates for the Parliamentary vacancy in East Tyrone. At the opening hour, the Sinn Fein candidate, Mr. Sean Milroy, accompanied by his conducting agent, Mr. James Dan, solicitor, Cookstown, and Mr. Sean McEntee, Belfast, was in attendance. They lodged eleven papers, in which the candidate was described as a journalist, residing at 53 Blessington street, Dublin, and in the nomination paper he was nominated by Dr. James Gillespie, Cookstown. The Dillonite candidate, Mr. Thomas J. S. Harbison, solicitor, Cookstown, and a member of the Irish Convention, afterwards appeared, accompanied by Mr. John Hay, solicitor, Dungannon (the conducting agent), Mr. Hugh Lynch, M.P., and others. They lodged 65 papers, and in the paper-page the candidate was nominated by Rev. Canon Thomas McMullan, P.P., Clonoe, Coalisland. The candidates shook hands after the usual formalities had been carried out by the Sub-Sheriff. The polling takes place on Wednesday next, and there will be nineteen polling stations on Dungannon, Coalisland, Coagh, Cookstown, Kildress, Fintona, Rock, and Stewartstown. The electorate numbers 6,200, with a "paper" majority of Nationalists over Unionists of 150, but as the register dates from 20th July, 1914, there will be many absent voters.

Dungannon is alive with imported organisers and helpers, and much excitement is evident. The Sinn Fein Party have opened committee rooms practically opposite the Dillonite headquarters in Irish street, and, as the thoroughfare is very narrow at that point, no one can enter either stronghold without being recognised and noted.

Our Cookstown Correspondent writes:—While this appears to be no doubt in the minds of Nationalists, or, indeed, Unionists, that Mr. Harbison will be returned by a large majority, there is considerable speculation as to the size of Mr. Milroy's poll. Those who know the constituency say that if it is 30 per cent. they will do very well, and others put it as low as 15 per cent. of the total votes, and it is generally estimated at 20 to 25 per cent. The bulk of his supporters are youths who have not yet got votes. No clergyman has yet identified himself with either party in this part of the division.

Telegraphing yesterday, our Stewartstown Correspondent says—Two rival meetings were held in the Market square, Stewartstown, last night, and were addressed by the respective candidates. The meetings passed over quietly. Feeling runs high in the constituency, and some of the clergymen in this parish have thrown themselves on the side of the Sinn Feiners within the past few days.

NORTH KING'S COUNTY.

Much speculation, says our Tullamore Correspondent, arising on Saturday, has been rife in Sinn Fein circles as to whom the Nationalist Party are going to put up to contest the vacancy against Dr. Patrick M'Cartan, the Sinn Fein candidate. A conference of the leading supporters of the party in the constituency is to be held on Sunday, at which a selection will probably be made. During the past few days the names of some local gentlemen were mentioned as likely to take up the cudgels in the party interest. What the party want is a "safe" man. Dr. M'Cartan is not regarded altogether as a "safe" Sinn Fein candidate. It is said that the farmers would have preferred another candidate. There are seven polling stations in the constituency, the total of voters on the register, compiled for the year 1915, being 4,601, or 19 more than were on it in the year 1914, when the by-election was fought. The largest number of voters is in the Tullamore area, but the greatest interest is centred in more urban and rural areas, and the great majority of them will probably support the Irish Party nominee in preference to Sinn Fein. In Clara the voters number 741, in Clonergowan 717, Edenderry 462, and Philipstown 581; and in all these towns the party claims to have a majority. Other important factors to be taken into account are that many of those who were prominent supporters of the party's nominee on December, 1914, have within the past six months ranged themselves on the side of Sinn Fein, and many of those who were prominent supporters of the late Mr. Graham are adherents of the Irish Party policy and hostile to Sinn Fein. Some of them were present at Mr. de Valera's meeting in July last year, and were not at all impressed by the policy that he advocated. On the whole, the contest between the party and Sinn Fein will be a close one. There are 800 Unionist voters in the constituency, and their votes, if cast for the Nationalist candidate, are certain to secure his return.

Telegraphing late last night, our Stewartstown Correspondent says:—A meeting of 1,500 of the supporters of Mr. Harbison was held to-day at Arboe. Mr. Joseph Devlin, who was the principal speaker, said that, no matter what the English Press and their conscription, the Irish Party had prevented it before, and they would prevent it in future also. As long as there is breath in our bodies, he said, we will not allow conscription to be applied to this land of ours. (Cheers.) Continuing, he urged the electors of East Tyrone to rally to the poll on next Wednesday, and send Mr. Harbison to represent them in Parliament by a triumphant majority.

GERMAN MILLS SEIZED.

The custodian of alien property, says a Reuter telegram from Washington, has seized six great German-owned woollen mills in New Jersey, valued at more than seventy million dollars. The earnings of the mills during the war will go to the Federal Treasury for the purpose of Liberty Bonds.

Mr. Harry Tuck Sherman has been appointed American Vice-Consul at London. He was for 23 years American Vice-Consul at Antwerp, and on the declaration of war by the United States removed to Queenstown.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Becher, D.S.O.—News has been received by his relatives at Ballygibbin, County Cork, that Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Becher, D.S.O., was severely wounded on the 25th March in the present battle in France, and is now in hospital at Boulogne. Colonel Becher had retired from the Army with the rank of major after the South African War, having served for twenty years in the 33rd (Duke of Wellington's West Riding) Regiment. On the outbreak of the present war, however, he rejoined at the colours, and has been for the past two years continuously in command of the 2nd Battalion of the Yorkshire Regiment, a battalion which he was instrumental in raising at Middlesbro', Yorkshire, in 1915.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. R. H. Ireland.—The death occurred on the 28th March, from wounds received in action, of Lieutenant-Colonel H. R. H. Ireland, Leinster Regiment. Colonel Ireland, who was wounded on March 23rd, when he was commanding a brigade in the fighting round Monchy-le-Preux, was in his fortieth year, and was the last surviving child of Mrs. de Courcy Ireland, Borrisokane, County Tipperary.

Captain K. M. Drummond.—Captain Kearsley Mathwin Drummond, Northumberland Fusiliers, the fifth son of Dr. Drummond, Newraheen, Nore, and Dromore, Co. Tipperary, and Dublin, and Sons, Dublin, has died from wounds received in recent action. He was 32 years of age.

Lieutenant Stannus Geoghegan.—Lieutenant Geoghegan, who died of wounds on the 16th February, 1918, was the eldest son of Lieutenant-Colonel S. Geoghegan, C.B., Indian Army, formerly commandant of the 62nd Punjabis. He was educated at Malvern and Sandhurst, and was gazetted to the Connaught Rangers, and subsequently transferred to the Leinsters. He was in action in Palestine. This is the third son of Mr. Thompson to fall in action. A fourth son has been badly wounded, a fifth is serving abroad, and in hospital, a sixth has been engaged in the present fighting in France, and there has not been any news of the seventh, who is serving in Mesopotamia, and the eighth is in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.

THE TILLAGE OUTLOOK IN IRELAND.

STATEMENT BY SIR THOMAS RUSSELL.

In the course of an interview with a representative of the Irish Times, Sir Thomas Russell, Vice-President of the Department of Agriculture, said that the great object of the moment—just as in Great Britain ships count almost for everything at the present time, so in Ireland tillage ploughing is the basis of our economic life, and in a very real and vital sense ships and tillage are intimately bound up with each other. Surveying the position a year ago, the Department's estimate was that, comparing the ploughed land of 1916 with that expected for 1917, there would be an increase of 1 millions of acres. Thaday, in the midst of ideal weather favourable the willingness, and even the enthusiasm, of all grades in the rural agricultural community, the estimate still stands with a chance of its being enlarged rather than reduced. Of course, the weather could not have always been a large element in farming operations. The counties of Londonderry, Down, Antrim, and Louth are well ahead of the rest, well, but to-day in every Northern area good is being turned to better, and very large numbers of farmers have already got the whole of their tillage ploughing and harrowing into the darkness of the earth, and will receive before long the assurance that this is not the end. The Cross was not the end. Death is never the end. The boiling takes place on Wednesday next, and there will be nineteen polling stations on Dungannon, Coalisland, Coagh, Cookstown, Kildress, Fintona, Rock, and Stewartstown. The electorate numbers 6,200, with a "paper" majority of Nationalists over Unionists of 150, but as the register dates from 20th July, 1914, there will be many absent voters.

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND.

EXTENSION OF THE HOURS FOR MARRIAGE.—Sidney Herbert Gem, Esq., Hon. Diocesan Treasurer of Christ Church Cathedral, brought forward in the General Synod a motion requesting the Government to extend the hours for marriage from 2 to 3 o'clock p.m. A resolution to that effect was unanimously passed, but the matter remained in abeyance. On the appointment of Mr. Samuels as Solicitor-General, Canon Stoney brought it before the Bishops and the Standing Committee. Canon Stoney succeeded in getting an Act passed, which has recently received the Royal assent. It will, therefore, be possible for clergymen to celebrate marriages in all parishes of Ireland places of worship up to 3 o'clock p.m. For many obvious reasons this will be a very great convenience. In England this concession was made long ago.

The weekly meeting for prayer on behalf of our King and country, our soldiers and sailors, and all in their service will be held at 4.30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Parochial Hall, Suffolk street, Dublin.

EASTER DAY IN THE CHURCHES.

Services suitable to the occasion were held in all the Protestant churches in Dublin yesterday. Easter Day is always an occasion when music enters more largely than usual into the sacred Services in St. Patrick's Cathedral, and yesterday was no exception to the rule. The fine choir is just now at its full strength, and the various settings which were selected for the Services were rendered with a devotional expression that was both comforting and inspiring to the large congregations. Early morning and evening the opening hymn was "Jesus Christ is risen to-day," and the anthems were "Hallelujah unto God's Almighty Son," from Beethoven's "The Mount of Olives," and "I know that my Redeemer liveth," from "Messiah." The treble solo in the latter mentioned anthem, and also the bass solo, "The trumpet shall sound," were beautiful examples of devotional singing, while the choruses were given with striking impressiveness. The Dean was the preacher morning and evening. His subject was the Resurrection of our Lord, an event which had changed fundamentally the eternal hopes of mankind. Into which were recorded in the Old Testament, and had given to the world a new aspect—a preparation for the life which is to continue after the death of our bodies.

MILITARY LAW IN CLARE.

On Saturday Colonel R. L. Owens, Commandant of County Clare military area, and the Competent Military Authority, issued a further Competent Military Authority, issued a further order that, as it was necessary to enforce special measures for the protection of the law-abiding inhabitants, he required all licensed premises, within 11 miles of the post office of Drumgriffin, and within the same distance of the Drumgriffin, and within the same distance of the post office at Bodyke, to be open for sale only between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. Every person is required to be within doors, unless he possesses a permit, from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. All meetings, assemblies, and processions, including fairs and markets, are prohibited in same areas.

A proclamation was also issued on Saturday by Major-General W. Fry, C.V.O., the Competent Military Authority in Ireland, making similar provisions in respect of the areas within a radius of 1½ miles where the bridge across the Shannon from Killaloe, in Clare, to Ballina, in Tipperary North Riding, ends in Ballina. Licensed premises in this area are required to close except from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., and all persons are required to be within doors between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

ASTRONOMICAL NOTES FOR APRIL.

(FROM OUR ASTRONOMICAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE PLANETS.—Mercury is an evening star till the 27th, when he is in Inferior Conjunction. He is at his greatest elongation east of the Sun on the 7th, and for some days about that time sets more than two hours after sunset. He will probably be an easy naked-eye object after sunset during the first half of April. With the Fethard telescope he was followed in full daylight when only a very few degrees from the Sun on every clear day. Daylight hours are the best time for observing the two inferior planets with the telescope, as they are then high above the horizon, and steady views can be obtained. Of course, an equatorial telescope is necessary for this purpose.

Venus is a morning star, and a brilliant object before sunrise. She is at present clearly visible to the naked eye in full sunshine if the observer knows exactly where to look. Mars, in Leo, is easily identified by his fiery red colour and brilliance. He rises near 4 p.m. on the 1st and before 2 p.m. on the 30th. Having been in Opposition on March 15th, he is now increasing his distance from the earth, and will rapidly become less bright as the month advances. Views of his surface have been difficult to obtain during March, as, in spite of fine weather and clear skies, the air has been unusually unsteady. His North Polar snow-cap has dwindled down to a tiny round spot, less conspicuous than some of the cloud areas that from time to time appear on various parts of his surface. All the more conspicuous markings of his surface have been easily identified, those of his Northern Hemisphere bearing their usual summer appearance. The deep blue of the larger seas is particularly striking. One of them was noted at Fethard lately as being full sky-blue. Jupiter is "running into daylight," and souths early in the afternoon, setting before midnight. He is, like Venus and Mercury, as worth looking at in daylight, as the observer possesses an equatorial telescope, his surface markings being very well defined at such times. It is not generally known that he is quite easily visible to the naked eye in daylight, as Venus is, if one knows exactly where to look. In the telescope his satellites are quite easily visible in full sunshine. Saturn is still well situated for the observer. Being higher up than Mars, very fine views of him were obtained at Fethard during March, and his satellite, Enceladus, was frequently seen with the 18-inch telescope, as well as the more conspicuous members of his family.

THE MOON:—

Last Quarter on April 4th, at 1.33 p.m.
New Moon on April 11th, at 4.34 a.m.
First Quarter on April 18th, at 4.8 a.m.
Full Moon on April 26th, at 8.5 a.m.

THE SUN.—A vigorous revival of solar activity brought some interesting spot-groups into view during March. A pair of small ordinary spots observed on the 11th by the 15th had expanded into two gigantic groups, visible to the naked eye, and of unusually complicated forms. Another pair of small spots observed entering on the Sun's disc on the 24th had undergone a similar development by the 28th.

THE STARS.—At midnight, April 1st, 10 p.m., April 30th, the tail of the Great Bear occupies the zenith. Constellations on the meridian are Canes Venatici, Coma Berenices, Virgo, Corvus, and Hydra. On the same meridian, further south, lies the Southern Cross, but it would be necessary to journey as far as the Canary Islands or Egypt to see it rise above the southern horizon. Just south of Coma Berenices lies the marvellous "Nebulous Region" of Virgo, where nebulæ lie so thick that merely sweeping across it with a large telescope and a low power at random the mysterious ghostly forms flit across the field of view in dozens. Six at one time may be seen in a single telescope field in the richest portions of the region. Leo has passed the meridian, and Gemini and Canis Minor are setting, Procyon and Castor and Pollux alone of winter's brilliant train remain in sight. Boötes, Corona Borealis, Hercules, Lyra, and Cygnus occupy the eastern sky in the order named. Serpens and Libra are lower down in the south-east. Aquila, Ophiuchus, and Scorpio are rising. In the north Cassiopeia lies below the Pole, and Capella is low in the north-west.

WAR NOTICES AND APPEALS.

BIBLES FOR IRISH TROOPS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—The Hibernian Bible Society has received appeals from two chaplains to the 10th (Irish) Division in Palestine asking for Bibles to be sent to them. One mentions as follows:—"Officers and men alike have been coming to me to inquire if I had any Old Testaments. We are not far from Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and Bethany, and I have had the great privilege and inestimable joy of being to these sacred spots. I wonder would it be possible for you to send me a few Old Testaments of small size, such as the men could slip into their pockets, and at the request of the two regiments, Royal Inniskilling and Royal Irish Fusiliers, could be added it would be a great delight to the men."

The Society is anxious to send forth such books, and I put forward this appeal for donations for the purpose.—Yours, etc.,

FINANCIAL NEWS

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5, 1917) .... 5 p.c.

LONDON, SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Although to-day was sandwiched between holidays it was a busy period in the Money market, there being again considerable displacements in connection with the end of the fiscal year. Call loans were in strong demand up to 3½ p.c., and weekly loans in the open market met a fair inquiry at 3½ p.c. All the loans which fell due at the Bank of England were renewed, and a moderate fresh sum was borrowed in the market at 4 p.c. for a week. [illegible] a million was disbursed in various [illegible] upon J. and P. Coats securities. [illegible] nothing fresh in the discount market, [illegible] the supply of paper was small, and the demand restricted. The quotation for fine bank bills of all dates was 3½ p.c. There was no variation in rates for second-hand Treasury bills, which were rather nominal. The Silver market was closed.

The following foreign exchange rates were current:—Paris cables, 27.20 to 27.21; Amsterdam cables, 10.25 to 10.35; Italy cables, 41.78 to 41.82; Madrid cables, 16.52 to 16.57; Christiania cables, 14.95 to 15.10; Stockholm cables, 14.00 to 14.12; Berne cables, 20.46 to 20.51; Rio de Janeiro ninety days bills, 13¼d.

The Stock Exchange being closed until next Tuesday, there are no transactions in public securities to report.

The Grand Trunk January statement shows gross receipts substantially lower, and working expenses much higher, the net result being a decrease of £350,550 in earnings. The bad figures are due to the heavy snowstorms during the month.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

J. G. MOONEY AND CO., LIMITED.—The directors report that the profit for the year 1917 amounted to £7,610 10/10, which, added to the balance of £4,497 2/8 brought from last year, and providing for all expenses, including directors' and auditors' fees, licence duties, income tax, and excess profits duty, amounts to £12,113 13/6. Interest on debenture stock absorbed £1,218. The directors propose to allocate the balance as follows:—In payment of dividend for one year to 31st December, 1917, on Preference Shares at 6 per cent. per annum, and on Ordinary Shares at 8 per cent. per annum, £3,375; reserve fund (making same £10,000), £2,634 15/4; and carry forward to next year, £4,888 13/2. Mr. John J. Mooney, M.P., retires from the Board by rotation, and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election. The auditors, Messrs. SPORTING NEWS.

PHŒNIX PARK MEETING—SATURDAY.

If the weather was not all that might have been desired on Saturday, no fault could reasonably be found with the sport, which, as a matter of fact, ruled thoroughly interesting throughout; and in this respect the first meeting of the season at the Park was an unqualified success. Runners were forthcoming in large numbers, the half-dozen events bringing out seventy-six horses, and some exhilarating finishes were witnessed, while backers, on the whole, did pretty well, even though the defeats of Too Tired and Wildwood were a severe blow. The day was remarkable for the number of "doubles" brought off, Captain Giles Loder winning a couple of races with sons of Buckwheat, trained at Conyngham Lodge, and the Rathcoole stable, presided over by Mr. W. Rankin, also supplied two winners, and both W. Barrett and J. Dines were twice successful in the saddle.

It was a brisk beginning when twenty-two sprinters turned out for the Open Five Furlong Handicap, but the numerical strength of the opposition did not deter the connections of Cimarron from taking a very short price about him, and he fully justified the confidence reposed in him. Although the verdict in his favour over Late Edition was only a short head, his victory was cleverly, if not easily, achieved, and thus he was not long about recouping Mr. Clarence Hailey some of the 550 guineas he gave for the horse at the late Mr. C. J. Blake's sale. They were not a particularly good-looking party of juveniles that contested the First-Class T.Y.O. Plate, and the best of them proved to be the unnamed gelding by Buckwheat—Miranda, who never left the issue in doubt. His stable companion, Buckgrass, on whom odds of 2 to 1 were laid, won the Second-Class T.Y.O. Plate, half-way through which he had to be hard ridden to hold his place, but in the end he easily prevailed over Athgarvan Lass and Down Royal.

Jilltrim, whose only bracket last year was gained on this course, accounted for some more fancied candidates in the Selling Mile Plate, and the Rathcoole stable supplemented this success in the Optional Selling Plate. For this seventeen two-year-olds entered an appearance, and a hot favourite was served up in the Baldoyle winner, Too Tired, who, however, was relegated into third place by Some Stuff and Owen Roe, the former of which pair shot out in the last couple of hundred yards full of running, and scored in decisive fashion. He only cost Mr. Rankin 17 guineas at the yearling sales last August, but he now had to bid up to 260 sovs. to retain possession of the daughter of Llangibby. The Weight for Age Plate furnished a thrilling finish, and it was only in the last stride that Vagabond caught and beat Wildwood, while Abbadia was only a head behind the second. The trainer of Wildwood lodged an objection to the winner on the ground that he was removed from the unsaddling ring before his jockey had weighed in, but this was over-ruled, and the £5 deposit forfeited. Details:—

RUGBY.—Schools' Inter-provincial.—Ulster v. Leinster.—This annual match was played at Ormeau, Belfast, on Saturday, before a moderate attendance. Heavy rain rendered the ground very slippery on the surface. Both teams turned out as selected. The game in the initial half was greatly in favour of Ulster, who scored in the first five minutes from Bingham, and Jessop added the extra points. This was followed by Smith beating several opponents near the line, and going over for an unconverted try. At half-time Ulster led by 1 goal and 1 try to nil. The second half was of quite a different character, and Leinster were seen to better advantage, smart and effective tackling alone keeping them out. Play was of a much more open nature, and Leinster backs had many more opportunities of showing up, and this must be attributed to their forwards, and Healy, who was frequently in the picture. Following strong pressure on the Leinster goal line, Smith cleverly dropped a goal, and following this Jestin got over from a throw-in. Hall goaling. Leinster played very pluckily, and Joyce nearly got over, Campbell bringing him down on the line. Towards the end Healy initiated a movement, and J. Cussen scored, but the goal kick was wide. M'Elliott was good in the opening stages, but fell off badly in the second period, and of the three-quarters, D. Cussen was the most prominent, but the line was faulty on the whole. Healy and Hogan at half were always good, and of the forwards the principal players were Hanrahan, Bryan, Birmingham, and Miller. On the Ulster side, Campbell at back played a great game, while the three-quarters were best represented by Hall, Bingham, and Douglas. Smith, the outstanding half, was the cleverest exponent on the field, and of a smart lot of forwards, Jestin, Heenan, Thompson, and M'Vicker were the more prominent. Result.—Ulster, 17 points; Leinster, 3 points.

"I have been a great sufferer from Lumbago and Rheumatism for the last ten years. Some months ago I was told by a Mr. F. Betterfield what 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' had done for him, so I started with it, and had not finished one bottle before I was able to go about again. I have now had four bottles, and can go about my work as easy as if I were 20, but in fact am 48. I cannot be too thankful that I ever started 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.' It is never out of the house, and if any of the children are ill I give them a short course of it. It gives them a good appetite for their food."

Are you one of the many who suffer from Rheumatism or Lumbago, or Sciatica, or Gout, or Gouty Eczema, etc.? If so, don't waste time on outward applications, which can but give temporary relief. What you want is a medicine that will free the blood of the poisonous matter (excess Uric Acid), the true cause of all your suffering. Clarke's Blood Mixture is composed of ingredients which quickly attack, overcome, and expel the impurities from the blood, and by rendering it clean and pure can be relied on as a safe and lasting remedy.

DUBLIN AND DISTRICT.

Queen's Theatre Sunday Concert.—The popularity of the Sunday concerts was again manifest last evening, when an attractive programme was enjoyed by a numerous audience. Amongst the artists who took part were—Miss E. Monaghan, Miss B. Moloney, Miss Goodman, Miss O'Carroll, and Messrs. Lucas, Morris, Lithobler, and Breton.

Royal Zoological Society.—The Council of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland met on Saturday, Sir Frederick Moore (President) in the chair. The Secretary announced that, as advertised in the daily Press, the Gardens would be open for the holidays from Easter Saturday to Wednesday at half-price for the period. The refreshment room, as usual, would be open all day. The Hon. house should attract numerous visitors, there are so many interesting groups of young cubs at present to be seen. In the Zoological Gardens is the collection of home-bred lions, as large as in the Dublin one, and what it lacks because of war conditions in the matter of some of the other species is made up by its fine collection of carnivora. The uncommon bird collection is also most interesting. Visitors. The number of visitors for the week was 2,300.

The Possession of Arms.—A carter, James Murray, 24 St. Michael's lane, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Mr. Drury on Saturday, in the Dublin Police Court, for having a military rifle in his possession between 9 and 10 p.m. on the 27th of March at Chancery street; for having a Remington rifle in his possession, and keeping it in his room at 24 Michael's lane, on the same day, without the written permission of the Superintendent of Police; and for having in his possession two khaki tunics and one khaki trousers. The prisoner created a disturbance in court, saying that he refused to recognise its authority.

Commercial Travellers' Concert.—A successful concert promoted by the Dublin Branch of the United Kingdom Commercial Travellers' Association was held in the Mansion House, Dublin, on Saturday evening. An excellent programme was provided. Miss Violet M'Kinnon, the blind mezzo-soprano and pianist, captivated the sympathy of the audience by her pleasing vocalism and her playing. Miss Gertrude Coulahan and Miss Terry O'Connor produced an artistic musical act, comprising vocal duet, piano solo, song ("The Kerry Dance"), and a violin solo. Miss May Doyle sang "Roses of Picardy" and "In my wild mountain valley" very prettily. Mr. Arthur Lucas and Mr. T. W. Hall contributed songs which were greatly appreciated. Mr. Alfred Gaynor sang humorous songs and told amusing stories. Mr. Leonard Baird was at the piano.

Irish Plotholders' Union.—At the adjourned convention of the Irish Plotholders' Union, held yesterday at Charlemont House, Fairview, the president, Mr. P. Donnelly, referred to the serious situation in regard to food supplies, and stated that it was of the utmost importance that pressure should be brought to bear on dilatory Government Departments to give the people access to the land. Their Union had nothing to do with any political party. He complained of the virtual boycott of their movement by the official Labour party, and mentioned that a letter had recently been sent to the Trades Hall, Dublin, from Tralee, pointing out that the local authority there refused to make land available for allotments. So little importance was attached to the subject in Dublin, it was simply sent on to the Union, with a memorandum to the effect that they might know something about it. On the motion of Mr. O'Farrelly, seconded by Mr. W. J. Murphy, a resolution was adopted requesting the Department of Agriculture to take steps to ensure a grant being made available, similar to that in England, of £2 an acre for the provision by local authorities of implement sheds for the use of plotholders.

PROVINCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

Fatal Railway Accident.—While crossing the lines at Scarva Junction, Co. Down, Robert Armstrong (19), potter, was knocked down by a passing engine and received fatal injuries.

Cost of Medical Substitutes.—For the past three years medical substitutes in Clonmel Union have cost £309.

Clonmel Horse Show.—At the annual meeting of the Clonmel Horse Show Society it was reported that the last show was a financial success, and left a balance to credit. A one day show will be held on August 8th next.

Train Derailed by Flood.—Heavy rain on Friday night synchronising with the incoming tide flooded many districts of Tralee on Saturday. The morning train from Dingle to Tralee was derailed, and buyers from Dingle pig fair were compelled to return.

Enniskillen Dispensary Doctors' Dispute.—It has been decided to summon a special meeting of the Enniskillen Guardians to consider the letter which was received from the L.G.B. urging them to reinstate their doctors and to come to terms with them on the question of salaries.

Farmer Fatally Shot.—While climbing over a ditch from a field in which he was sowing seed on Friday, at Bilboa, near Cappamore, Co. Limerick, Mr. Jeremiah Duggan, D.C., aged 60, accidentally shot himself dead with a gun which he was carrying to scare crows.

A Washington telegram states that Mr. Hoover, the Food Controller, addressed a meeting of several hotel-keepers on Friday on the subject of food economy. On the conclusion of his address, the whole assembly rose and raised their right hands in token that they pledged themselves to effect such economy in hotel menus as would help to render wheat available to double the present supplies of wheat going to the Allies.

DICKSON'S Hawlmark Seeds—The demand for our famous seeds is larger than ever, both by our old and constant customers and by the army of new Plot-holders, Backyarders, and Villa Gardeners, which the scarcity of food has produced. The public recognise that high class seeds add to the pleasure and profit of gardening, and wisely decide that none but the best are good enough for them. We cater for all classes and extend equal courtesy and attention to all customers. Our assistants are working hard, early and late, to keep abreast of orders. Under present circumstances customers should not ask for seeds "by return" or "immediately." If you have delayed ordering be fair and wait your turn. We can then be fair to everyone.—Alex. Dickson and Sons, Ltd., Hawlmark, 61 Dawson st., Dublin.
